KurzbeschreibungYears and years ago, there lived an aboriginal tribe in the highlands of southern Philippines who followed a culture characterized by violence and heartlessness. This tribal community lived in a caste system where the datu or the chieftain occupied the highest strata, followed by the warriors called magani, then the common tribal members, and the slaves called al-lang who belonged to the lowest strata. It was in this setting that Agawe was raised by al-lang parents until his destiny beckoned sending him on a journey to find a better fate than that of a slave.
